

TOP 50 2025 NFL

DRAFT GUIDE

BY NICK MANSOUR

HI THERE,

Welcome to my 2025 NFL Draft Guide. This is a Top 50 Big Board, and the guide consists of one-page profiles for each player where you can find:

- ATHLETIC TESTING & BASIC PLAYER INFO (age is based on Draft Night)
- POSITION RANKING & PRO COMPARISON
- GRADES (I grade by where I believe they deserve to be selected in an average draft, it's not a projection or prediction of where they will go)
- SCOUTING REPORT

This took a lot of time & effort to make, and I really appreciate you taking the time to check it out. If you like what you read, you might consider subscribing to my YouTube channel. In the near future I'll be coming out with NFL content.

You can subscribe at youtube.com/@imnickmansour

THANK YOU FOR READING,

Nick Mansour

METHODOLOGY

First off, grades are a reflection of PLAY QUALITY. Comparisons are a reflection of PLAY STYLE.

Positional value is factored into big board rankings. For example, I may have a higher grade for a RB than a QB, but the QB will be higher in my rankings because it's the more valuable position.

I don't factor off-field concerns for prospects. I don't know anything outside of twitter rumors so it would be unfair to weigh in.

To make the grades the most accessible and easy to understand, I simply grade where I believe they deserve to go in an average draft, regardless of position. You'll see that there aren't too many players with a 1st round grade in this draft. It's a deep class but the top isn't filled with high-end talent.

To get to my top 50, I watched at least three games for 150 prospects, and at least seven for the ones you see here.

ABOUT RAS (RELATIVE ATHLETIC SCORE)

In each prospect evaluation, you'll see a metric called RAS. Relative Athletic Score (RAS) is a metric that measures a player's athleticism relative to their position, making it easy to compare athletes based on speed, size, strength, and agility. It assigns a position-specific score using standardized testing results.

RAS is a popular and reputable metric used by NFL scouting departments.

You may notice that many players in this guide are missing RAS scores. This draft class had an uncommon number of players either opt out of testing drills or unable to participate do to injury. Those players don't have the data to receive an RAS score.

Created by Kent Lee Platte, RAS is available at www.ras.football

TABLE OF CONTENTS

--	--

6 –	BIG BOARD
57 –	MY BIG BOARD VS. CONSENSUS – WHO AM I HIGHER/LOWER ON?
58 –	MY SLEEPERS

--	--

HEIGHT 6'3" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 250 | AGE 21

GRADE

TOP 5
PICKPOSITION
RANK

1

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
VON MILLER

Converted linebacker with generational juice and a growing bag of moves, good luck if the power comes.

ELITE
ATHLETICISM

ELITE BEND

QUICK LEARNER

NEW TO THE
POSITION

STRENGTHS:

- Generational burst, only more explosive get-off in the NFL is maybe Micah Parsons
- Exceptional bend and ability to flatten the edge and erase angles
- Off-ball LB instincts give him excellent play rec, block shedding, and range in pursuit
- Wins just by forcing tackles to guess whether he's going inside or outside
- Inside rip & ghost moves are elite, especially when used as counters off his speed
- Quickness creates almost no recovery window for linemen after performing moves
- Tremendous finishing speed; converts sacks before you realize he even got a pressure
- Rapid development in rush moves: flashed elite spin, swim, and counters in December
- Very difficult to get hands on; linemen often can only push him downfield and pray
- Strong tackler with stopping power; and legit coverage chops from LB background

WEAKNESSES:

- Speed-to-power and bull rush are underdeveloped, though flashes are promising
- Lacks a true power move right now, which caps his current diversity as a rusher
- Frame and anchor are still that of a converted linebacker; below-average edge setter
- Slowed down when combo blocked or in traffic on stunts, still learning how to reset
- Occasionally overpursues or takes false steps trying to anticipate the QB or RB

HEIGHT 6'0" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 188 | AGE 21

GRADE

TOP 5
PICK

POSITION
RANK

1

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
ASANTE SAMUEL SR.

A unicorn with rare athleticism and instincts, now chasing history as the first two-way player in nearly a century.

FREAKY MOVEMENT
ABILITY

BALL SKILLS

ZONE
INSTINCTS

DUAL PROSPECT

STRENGTHS:

- Agility, stop-start quickness, and body control are all off the charts
- Generational football instincts & spatial awareness to locate and fight for the ball
- Elite contested-catch ability that's better than WRs; best ball skills for a CB ever
- Very floaty leaper with great timing to high-point the ball
- Ridiculous zone instincts and IQ, quickly recognizes and closes on routes
- Flashes immense man coverage upside with fluid hips and mirror ability
- Downhill burst to close on route breaks is as good as any CB in the league today
- Incredible recovery speed, can regain leverage quickly after a false step
- Anticipation and bait skills to trick the quarterback and jump routes

WEAKNESSES:

- Lacks physicality, struggles to jam in press coverage or disrupt routes downfield
- Overreacts to releases, occasionally places himself out of position early
- Straight-line speed is very good but not elite
- Can be undisciplined at times when covering deeper routes down the field
- Tackling is inconsistent, with lack of willingness to wrap up and finish in run support
- Might have better upside as a CB2 so he can play loose and maximize ball production
- Can he actually play both CB and WR in the NFL? He may need a "main" position

HEIGHT 6'0" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 188 | AGE 21

GRADE

TOP 5
PICK

POSITION
RANK

1

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
ODELL BECKHAM JR.

A unicorn with rare athleticism and instincts, now chasing history as the first two-way player in nearly a century.

FREAKY MOVEMENT
ABILITY

BALL SKILLS

ZONE
INSTINCTS

DUAL PROSPECT

STRENGTHS:

- Freakish agility, stop-start quickness, and body control to be a constant mismatch
- Generational football instincts & spatial awareness to track and fight for the ball
- Incredible leaper who high-points the ball like a much bigger receiver
- Won an absurd percentage of contested catches at Colorado despite his frame
- Automatic hands with very low drop rates throughout his career
- Dangerous after the catch with elite vision and quickness to make defenders miss
- Natural feel for leverage and soft spots in zone, rarely gets lost in spacing
- Athleticism gives him extremely high upside as a separator

WEAKNESSES:

- Raw route-runner that doesn't separate consistently; glides and rounds off his breaks
- Basic release package with limited tools to beat press or manipulate leverage
- Lacks play strength and can be re-routed or outmuscled by physical corners
- Straight-line speed is very good but not elite
- Hasn't faced much press coverage; unclear how he'll handle NFL corners at the line
- Route tree was limited in college, mostly working off athleticism and instincts
- Can he actually play both CB and WR in the NFL? He may need a "main" position

HEIGHT 5'8"
WEIGHT 213

YEAR JUNIOR
AGE 21

GRADE

TOP 10
PICKPOSITION
RANK

1

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
MAURICE JONES-DREW

An explosive, tackle-breaking machine who's testing how high a runningback can be drafted in this era.

GENERATIONAL TACKLE
BREAKER

ELITE
VISION

UNDERRATED ACCELERATION

LOW
COMPETITION
LEVEL

STRENGTHS:

- Best contact balance and tackle-breaking I've ever seen in college
- Exceptional vision and decisiveness at both the first and second levels
- Made 20+ yard gains look easy and routine every week
- Ideal fit for zone schemes, quickly identifies holes, makes sharp cuts, and explodes
- Underrated acceleration, bursting through holes and reaching top speed quickly
- Seemingly always knows when to attack a hole or when to be patient
- Reliable hands and a dynamic YAC threat on screens and checkdowns
- Short but dense frame, built low to the ground with strong legs that keep him upright
- Runs with relentless effort, constantly fights for extra yards and drags defenders
- Some comical highlights with multiple defenders bouncing off of him on any given run

WEAKNESSES:

- Not a true power back in the traditional sense, doesn't truck like bigger bruisers
- Uses a shimmy move that gets too lateral at the second level instead of pressing upfield
- Pass protection needs improvement, with solid effort but out of control technique
- More of a screen and checkdown receiver than a route runner
- Long speed is good but not elite, he won't outrun defensive backs on every breakaway

HEIGHT 6'6" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 248 | AGE 21

GRADE

TOP 10
PICKPOSITION
RANK

1

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
JORDAN REED

A smooth mover who runs routes like a WR with Y-tight end size, a true matchup nightmare.

ROUTE
RUNNERFLUID
MOVERWR
ALIGNMENT
FLEXIBLELACKS
PHYSICALITY

STRENGTHS:

- Exceptional fluidity and agility in his routes
- Uniquely technical routes; uses head fakes, hip sinks, and footwork to separate
- Very good size for the position in both height and weight
- Shocking release package for a TE, can line up out-wide and separate at the LOS
- Knows how to use his hands to fight and beat DBs during a route
- Decent top speed with some upside to stretch the field vertically
- Can win contested catches through great concentration and body control
- Elite body control gives him an extremely wide catch-radius, helps inaccurate QBs
- Real flashes of skill and effort as an in-line or move blocker

WEAKNESSES:

- Not a true physical presence at the catch point; wish he could overpower defenders
- Despite good traits, offers very little after the catch and doesn't break many tackles
- Shows a lot of effort as a blocker but fails to move bigger defenders or sustain blocks
- Relatively short arms for his height
- Despite his size, likely won't play as a Y tight end at the next level

HEIGHT 6'3" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 296 | AGE 21

GRADE

EARLY 1STPOSITION
RANK

1

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
JONATHAN ALLEN

A refined and explosive play wrecker with best-in-class skills against both the run and pass.

RUN DEFENSE

ELITE ATHLETE

HAND USAGE

SHORT ARMS

STRENGTHS:

- Agile, flexible, and quick laterally, maneuvers around blockers with ease
- Leverage monster who shoots underneath blockers' pads right off the snap
- Elite hand usage; rare combo of grip strength and hand quickness
- Very explosive first step, penetrates very quickly and gets in the backfield early
- Uniquely polished at 3-technique with decisiveness and spatial awareness
- Teach tape for block-shed; holds linemen away, finds the ball-carrier, then discards
- Uses a few pass rush moves extremely effectively (push-and-pull and club move)
- Has the athleticism to be an elite stunt rusher at the next level
- High-motor and flashes of a great bull rush give him more upside than most think

WEAKNESSES:

- Lacks ideal length (<32" arms), and is lighter than expected at around 295 lbs.
- Doesn't have a dominant anchor and can be moved off his spot more often than ideal
- Limited pass-rush moves beyond an effective push-pull and club move
- Inconsistent power and bull rush that doesn't always translate into pocket collapse *(though it does a lot of the time)
- Lacks the prototypical size to be a reliable two-gap player

HEIGHT 6'3" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 235 | AGE 21

GRADE

EARLY 1STPOSITION
RANKING

1

RAS

9.88

10 YD

1.58

40 YD

4.52

PRO COMPARISON:
JAMIE COLLINS

Built like an EDGE and moves like a safety, Campbell just needs to see it faster to reach stardom.

ELITE
ATHLETICISM

PASS RUSH THREAT

RAW PROSPECT

SLOW
PROCESSING

STRENGTHS:

- Built like a tank with elite athleticism for any position
- Incredible range and sideline-to-sideline movement, glides laterally with ease
- Outstanding tackler; low missed rate, clean technique, and elite stopping power
- Explosive pass-rush threat with real EDGE traits; flashes ghost, stab, and swipe moves
- Open-field nightmare with rare pursuit speed & length to reach ball-carriers
- Natural in man coverage with the tools to stick with TEs, RBs, and even WRs
- Versatility to be deployed as a true weapon in creative fronts and sub-packages
- Feisty and tenacious engaging blocks; doesn't get driven back easily

WEAKNESSES:

- Play recognition is delayed; takes too long to diagnose and react to run concepts
- Easily fooled by play action and RPOs; instincts still developing
- Zone coverage instincts are raw; struggles with depth, spacing, and route anticipation
- Upright posture limits ability to shed blocks and tackle in tight spaces
- Gap discipline is inconsistent; freelances and loses run fits too often
- Despite fluid range, can look choppy and rigid on some transitions
- Projection-based player who may take a few years to reach full potential

HEIGHT 6'0"
WEIGHT 206

YEAR JUNIOR
AGE 21

GRADE

MID
1ST

POSITION
RANK

2

RAS

N/A

10 YD

1.55

40 YD

4.41

PRO COMPARISON:
JEREMY MACLIN

A physical receiver with twitchy athleticism, who just needs to sharpen his tools to complete the package.

YAC
THREAT

ACCELERATION

SLOT AND BOUNDARY

INCONSISTENT ROUTES

STRENGTHS:

- Elite after-catch threat with good vision and top-tier elusiveness
- All-around athletic profile that teams look for in a #1 WR
- Physical at the LOS and has the release skills to separate early from press coverage
- Accelerates rapidly off the line, reaches near-top speed very quickly
- Filled-out, powerful frame that handles contact in his routes & breaks tackles
- Coordinated mover with the ability to effortlessly adjust his body in the air
- Versatile skill set, lined up primarily in the slot but projects confidently to the outside
- Exceptional ball-tracking, especially effective on slot fades
- Good hands with the ability to make very difficult hand catches

WEAKNESSES:

- Route running lacks sharp, sudden breaks, limiting consistent separation
- More of a smooth glider than a crisp route-technician at the moment
- Top-end speed is solid but not elite
- Not QB friendly right now, small catch radius & bad awareness to work back to the ball
- Limited outside experience in college, having played primarily in the slot at Missouri
- Some inconsistencies in contested catch situations despite strong physical tools

HEIGHT 6'5" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 321 | AGE 21

ARM: 34.5"

GRADE

EARLY 1ST

POSITION
RANK

1

RAS

3.68

10 YD

1.95

40 YD

5.38

PRO COMPARISON:
MIKE IUPATI

A human hydraulic press with all-pro upside, as long as he gets drafted to a gap scheme....

ANCHOR

GAP
BLOCKING

HIGHLIGHT BLOCKS

EXTREMELY SLOW

STRENGTHS:

- Jaw-dropping play strength in both his upper and lower body
- Immovable anchor that handles nose tackles with ease, will never get walked back
- Pancake machine, pummels defenders to the ground and hunts for extra work
- Plays with the best aggression in this class by a wide margin
- Extremely strong grip that can control defenders even when his positioning is bad
- Uses his width to wall off lanes, makes it difficult for defenders to run around him
- Smart and patient in pass protection, always picks up stunts and chips to help others
- Can be an all-pro guard if drafted to the right fit (gap-heavy)
- Devastating leg drive generates real movement at the point of attack

WEAKNESSES:

- Very limited foot speed that may take him entirely off draft boards for some teams
- Limited range that generally struggles to reach landmarks on the move
- Ceiling is scheme-dependent; elite in gap systems, but a clunky fit in wide-zone offenses
- Lets defenders into his chest too often, creating recovery strain
- If the tackle kicks out too far and creates a gap, can be beat on his outside shoulder
- Gets out of control/off-balance when overextending to hit moving targets

HEIGHT 6'4" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 332 | AGE 21

ARM: 33.5"

GRADE

MID
1ST

POSITION
RANK

2

RAS

9.90

10 YD

1.74

40 YD

4.91

PRO COMPARISON:
CORDY GLENN

BONUS COMP: IF KENNETH GRANT WAS AN OT

A dancing bear with all the traits to be special, but can he learn to use his strength and skills to dominate?

SIZE & STRENGTH

LATERAL QUICKNESS

SCHEME
VERSATILE

UNDER-USES
HIS POWER

STRENGTHS:

- Very dense and heavy frame paired with excellent lateral quickness for his size
- Uses a powerful outside arm to seal the edge against speed rushers
- King of getting to his landmarks in both the pass and run
- His best reps when anchoring look unmovable
- Excellent get-off and coordinated footwork gives him a nice baseline in both phases
- High-upside in both zone & gap blocking with good pull blocks & leg drive
- Natural core strength makes him hard to uproot when he's balanced and engaged
- Flashes of a strong initial punch and can lock out defenders when his timing is right
- Won encounters against good pass rushers like Kyle Kennard & Nic Scourton

WEAKNESSES:

- Power profile is very inconsistent; has the strength but rarely imposes it
- Doesn't use his strong upper body, should get low and lay into guys but just doesn't
- Inconsistent anchor; gets walked back too often by power rushers for his size
- Doesn't finish or sustain blocks enough and allows defenders to stay alive in a play
- Frequently cheats inside in pass protection, giving up easy angles around the edge
- Pass-pro awareness needs to improve, puts himself in recovery mode unnecessarily

HEIGHT 6'2" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 194 | AGE 21

GRADE

MID 1STPOSITION
RANKING

2

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
PATRICK SURTAIN II

Fluid & long with elite zone skills, Johnson is still a top player in the class in my book.

FLUID
MOVERZONE
INSTINCTSCATCH POINT
TECHNIQUEDOWN YEAR & INJURY

STRENGTHS:

- Quick, efficient footwork with very fluid transitions and smooth movement skills
- Truly elite zone coverage skills with natural route recognition & closing ability
- Great top-down style of play to squeeze routes and close on route breaks in time
- Long frame and arms that he pairs with good timing to contest at the catch point
- Match coverage comes naturally to him with the ability to pick up & pass off quickly
- Physical in coverage and can disrupt receivers at the route break
- Solid ball skills; particularly good at pass breakups
- Rarely gets stacked vertically due to good technique and spacing
- Has the movement skills, physicality, & footwork to be a great press corner

WEAKNESSES:

- Very limited press man experience; man coverage profile is a projection
- Overall long speed is fine but not a strength, could be tested by vertical WRs
- 2024 tape was a step down from an elite 2023 season; but he may have been hurt
- Pursuit angles in run defense are inadequate to be a real contributor against the run
- Recovery speed is average; can be susceptible if beaten early
- Can get burned by double moves when aggressively triggering downhill
- Doesn't track the deep ball well; tends to play the receiver instead of the pass

HEIGHT 5'11" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 191 | AGE 21

GRADE

MID 1STPOSITION
RANK

3

RAS

N/A

10 YD

1.49

40 YD

4.29

PRO COMPARISON:
EMMANUEL SANDERS

A polished Z receiver with pacing, route skills, and quick feet to be a problem at every level.

ROUTE
RUNNERACCELERATE &
DECELERATERELEASE
PACKAGELACKS
PHYSICALITY

STRENGTHS:

- Master at varying pace and decelerating, separates with timing and sudden feet
- Sits down effectively in zones, adjusts his route depth to find soft spots
- Very little wasted movement, prioritizes decisive shakes at the top of his breaks
- Hands catcher with a larger catch radius than you think; can make difficult grabs
- Excellent technique at the LOS featuring an extremely deep bag of releases
- True ball tracker down the field and in traffic
- Good concentration and toughness to hold onto the ball through contact
- All-around athlete with good speed, good acceleration, and elite deceleration

WEAKNESSES:

- Can be disrupted by bigger/stronger defenders who jam him or deliver zone chucks
- A reported 4.29 time but he looks slower on tape; vertical stacking is inconsistent
- Doesn't box out receivers at the catch point, needs to improve for contested catches
- Needs sharper cuts on in-breakers and posts, sometimes rounds his routes too much
- Serviceable YAC receiver but not a true strength of his
- Projects more as a Z receiver given his lack of size or truly elite top-end speed

HEIGHT 6'5" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 310 | AGE 22

ARM: 33"

GRADE

MID
1ST

POSITION
RANK

1

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
ANDREW THOMAS

A graceful pass protector with great footwork,
Simmons is worth the bet, even with the injury concern.

FLUID
MOVER

PASS PRO
EXPERT

ZONE
BLOCKING

LACKS POWER

STRENGTHS:

- Quick & easy get-off & kick-slide, true mirror ability against pass rushers
- Naturally low pad level, wins with leverage in both phases consistently
- Good athleticism and lateral movement, has high upside in zone blocking
- Uniquely bendy & flexible to reach defenders, more than makes up for shorter arms
- Solid anchor despite a lighter build with a technically-sound & wide stance
- Very solid grip strength to give him a plan against power
- Good use of his hands after initial contact to negate swipes and chops
- Places left arm to protect the outside shoulder and redirect defenders
- Consistently picks up stunts with good awareness in pass protection

WEAKNESSES:

- Concern about a torn patellar tendon suffered this season
- Late hand-strikes in pass protection can let defenders get inside his chest
- Power in his initial punch is below average, doesn't displace defenders
- Can get walked back against speed-to-power (Oregon 2024)
- Even though it hasn't been an issue on tape, shorter arms may prevent growth in his anchor
- Not a natural fit for gap schemes due to limited ability to sustain blocks
- Needs to either get better at using late hands in pass pro, or stop utilizing it so much

HEIGHT 6'1" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 181 | AGE 21

GRADE

MID 1STPOSITION
RANK

3

RAS

9.69

10 YD

1.49

40 YD

4.28

PRO COMPARISON:
GREG NEWSOME II

Blazing speed, fluid hips, and sharp zone skills make Hairston a perfect fit for modern quarters defenses.

ZONE
COVERAGE

HIGH-END
ATHLETE

CATCH POINT
TECHNIQUE

LACKS
PHYSICALITY

STRENGTHS:

- Checks every athleticism box with elite speed, acceleration, and agility
- Sticky in off-man & zone coverage, built for Vic Fangio-style Quarters defenses
- Elite downhill burst to close and break up the catch
- Technically refined; good slide stepper, great at both leading and trailing receivers
- Smooth hip transitions in man coverage allow true mirroring on route breaks
- Stays patient on vertical routes, never bites or jumps against fakes
- Plays the catch point with very well-placed and timed hands
- Great processing in match coverage, quickly identifies assignments and pass-offs

WEAKNESSES:

- Almost exclusively plays off-coverage and may struggle in bump & run schemes
- Misleading interception production at KU, has a generally conservative play-style
- Get can ran through down the field by stronger receivers
- Occasionally can get vertically stacked due to poor eye discipline and late reactions
- Weak hand-fighting that consistently fails to jam at the line or disrupt routes
- Sometimes gets boxed out by stronger receivers at the catch point
- Liability in run defense, unable to disengage from blocks despite fiery attitude

HEIGHT 6'2" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 219 | AGE 22

GRADE

MID 1STPOSITION
RANKING

1

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
TEXANS DESHAUN WATSON

A composed playmaker with great instincts, if Ward can rein in the chaos a bit, he can be special.

CALM UNDER PRESSURE

RPO
OPERATOR

PLAYMAKER

ACCURACY & MECHANICS ISSUES

STRENGTHS:

- Very flexible sidearm release allows throws from any platform or angle
- Exceptionally poised in the pocket; never gets sped up by pressure
- Virtuoso improviser with natural playmaking instincts and creativity
- Quick, accurate RPO operator with arm angles to fit throws around defenders
- Excellent velocity on short/intermediate throws; consistently zips into tight windows
- Solid post-snap processor; effective at simple progressions & attacking leverage
- Knows when to throw with touch and when to rip it
- Strong enough to bounce off arm tackles and escape pressure in tight spaces
- Mastered Miami's Air Raid scheme; great timing in quick-game & option concepts

WEAKNESSES:

- Confusing arm strength profile; lacks deep velocity despite short/intermediate zip
- Accuracy is streaky; excellent on quick throws but erratic everywhere else
- Deep balls tend to float and die, especially on deep sideline or hash throws
- At times fails to see lurking defenders in zone; will force a bad throw & cause turnovers
- Inconsistent lower-body mechanics; often throws without using his base
- Doesn't consistently throw with anticipation
- Not a real rushing threat; average mobility and adds little on designed runs

HEIGHT 6'3" | YEAR SOPH.
WEIGHT 251 | AGE 21

GRADE

MID 1STPOSITION
RANK

2

RAS

N/A

SHORT SHUTTLE

4.25

THREE CONE

6.85

both are over 95th percentile

PRO COMPARISON:
ELVIS DUMERVIL

A pass-rush artist with great bend, but will his short arms and small-school tape cloud the projection?

DEEP
PASS-RUSH
BAG

BENDY & AGILE

HIGH
MOTOR

LOW
COMPETITION
LEVEL

STRENGTHS:

- Explosive off the snap with legit bend to win the edge cleanly
- Deep and unpredictable pass-rush bag, uses a deadly cross-chop and club-swim
- Shows some ability to get into counter moves with natural instincts to react mid-rush
- Exploits poor angles with elite agility that overwhelms linemen
- Extremely high-motor in both phases
- Strong run defender for his size, uses hands to shed blocks and led NCAA in run stops
- Master against play action as he uses the same pass-rush moves against the run
- Shows flashes of power on bull rushes despite size, shocks linemen when it's lined up

WEAKNESSES:

- Narrow frame removes ability to set the edge or anchor against the run
- 31.5" arms show up when trying to close and wrap; may not convert as many sacks
- Bull rush is inconsistent and often leads to overextension or losing balance
- Occasionally take too wide of an angle and gets too deep past the pocket
- Can be overwhelmed by double teams and washed out in the run game
- Lack of competition makes his dominant tape harder to trust, especially with his frame

HEIGHT 6'4"
WEIGHT 219

YEAR SENIOR
AGE 22

GRADE

MID
1ST

POSITION
RANK

4

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

4.55u

PRO COMPARISON:

SOUPED-UP MARQUES COLSTON

Massive target with circus-level ball skills and surprising fluidity, but can he be a vertical threat?

ELITE BALL SKILLS

ZONE BEATER

SLOT & BOUNDARY

LACKS
QUICKNESS

STRENGTHS:

- Exceptional size and length paired with good body control; truly elite catch radius
- As good as it gets in high-pointing the ball, boxing out defenders, concentrating through traffic, and making crazy catches look routine
- Great route-runner and separator in open space against zones
- Surprisingly nimble and fluid for his size; moves well on horizontal routes
- Consistently finds soft spots in zones at the intermediate & deep levels of the field
- Aggressive playmaker after the catch with elusiveness, tackle-breaking, and vision
- Top speed is solid on longer strides & when given space to build momentum

WEAKNESSES:

- Disappointing release package to separate early or get off press coverage
- Difficulty separating against man coverage, relies mainly on open space in zone
- Lacks explosiveness & short-area quickness
- Not a vertical threat, DBs can play tight without worrying about cushion
- Physical at the catch point but has average play strength; gets rerouted and displaced
- Loses fluidity when over striding, leads to awkward & clunky movement
- A large portion of his total production came against weak competition

HEIGHT 6'2" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 242 | AGE 22

GRADE

MID 1STPOSITION
RANKING

2

RAS

9.86

VERT

39.5"

SHORT SHUTTLE

4.19

PRO COMPARISON:

JEREMIAH OWUSU-KORAMOAH

Built in a lab to erase angles and cover, Schwesinger brings elite range and upside if you use him right.

ELITE
ATHLETICISMWIDE ZONE
EXPERTNATURAL
COVERAGELACKS SIZE & STRENGTH

STRENGTHS:

- Explosive trigger against the run; attacks downhill immediately off the snap
- Exceptional fluidity & lateral movement to mirror backs and close open lanes
- Elite against wide zone; has pursuit speed to erase horizontal plays
- Very reliable tackler with great form and wrap-up technique despite lighter frame
- Corner-like footwork & fluid hips in zone coverage; very clean transitions
- Natural man coverage ability with foot speed to match WRs and TEs
- Stops on a dime and redirects instantly with rare deceleration for an LB
- Aggressive, fearless mentality; throws himself into blocks or ball-carriers
- Bend and closing speed gives him real juice as a blitz threat

WEAKNESSES:

- Undersized frame with minimal play strength; lacks anchor to hold gaps
- Can get held up by blocks at the second level and struggles to disengage
- No true stopping power as a tackler; won't stonewall contact
- Zone instincts still developing; vulnerable to play-action & option concepts
- Over-eager play style occasionally leads to poor pursuit angles
- Physical mentality can't always overcome his size and strength limitations

HEIGHT 6'4" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 296 | AGE 21

GRADE

LATE 1STPOSITION
RANKING

2

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

SHORT SHUTTLE

4.96

PRO COMPARISON:
DEVONTAE WYATT

With upside as a true backfield wrecker, Nolen needs to iron out the inconsistencies in his play to get there.

EXPLOSIVE ATHLETE

STRIKE
POWER

INCONSISTENT

RAW IN PASS-RUSH

STRENGTHS:

- Bull rush can be extremely effective; flashes great momentum and knockback power
- Uses an arm-over move to split double teams and penetrate gaps
- Natural power and physicality at the point of attack; a load to handle when squared
- Great get-off and first-strike ability with very powerful hands when used accurately
- Solid lateral quickness and uses a hesitation move that sets up his bull rush
- Dangerous stunt rusher who has the fluidity to weave through loops
- High motor player who's always fighting through blocks and trying to make a play
- Athletic upside to develop into a backfield disruptor against the run and pass

WEAKNESSES:

- Pass-rush plan is very raw; no reliable counters or advanced moves in his arsenal
- Lack of length for the position; struggles to connect consistently and win with his hands
- Inconsistent pad level limits his ability to maximize his natural strength
- Relies heavily on burst and athleticism rather than refined defensive line skills
- Anchor is very hit or miss; likely limited to just be a 3-tech at the next level because of it
- Gap discipline is shaky; frequently plays himself out of position or overcommits
- Performance varies game-to-game; very inconsistent right now

HEIGHT 6'5" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 315 | AGE 21

ARM: 33.5"

GRADE

MID
1ST

POSITION
RANK

3

RAS

8.26

10 YD

1.78

40 YD

5.16

PRO COMPARISON:
DONOVAN SMITH

A composed, high-floor tackle built for Sundays, who's style raises questions about how much upside remains.

CORE STRENGTH

PASS
PROTECTOR

CHOPPY
FOOTWORK

BALANCE ISSUES

STRENGTHS:

- Natural core strength and effective leg drive in the run game
- Textbook anchor with strong lean and active legs, rarely getting driven back
- Skilled at using arms to protect his outside shoulder from speed rushers
- Efficient & easy mover to move laterally in zone blocking schemes
- Consistent technique to connect with defenders, alleviates some length concerns
- Disciplined pass-blocker who anticipates stunts and counters
- Strength, pad level, & technique will give him a high floor at tackle or guard
- Pass-protection took a huge leap in 2024 with almost no losses

WEAKNESSES:

- Can have sluggish get-off; often the last to set which leaves him vulnerable
- Shorter arms that he can't always make up for with flexibility or athleticism
- Footwork can look choppy and heavy, struggles with pass-setting and run landmarks
- Has a tendency to lunge at defenders which causes a lot of balance problems
- Will probably need chip help in the NFL when handling twitchier rushers
- Initial punch lacks the force to displace defenders
- Grip strength can fail against counter moves
- He may or may not be unathletic? Strange & confusing athletic profile

HEIGHT 6'0" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 204 | AGE 22

GRADE

LATE
1ST

POSITION
RANKING

1

RAS

5.79

10 YD

1.62

40 YD

4.58

PRO COMPARISON:
JAIRUS BYRD

A ballhawk with elite anticipation and motor, but Watts' lack of speed will test how far that takes him.

BALL SKILLS

ZONE
INSTINCTS

HIGH
MOTOR

BELOW
AVERAGE
ATHLETE

STRENGTHS:

- Elite route anticipation & closing timing; reads QB eyes & route breaks extremely well
- Great ball skills and tracking; outstanding production with high INT totals
- High football IQ; routinely positions himself well in single-high and quarters
- Flows through traffic in coverage with ease to track receivers and break on the ball
- Plays with relentless motor; constantly active and involved around the ball
- Physical press ability in man coverage with disruptive hand usage
- Natural instincts as a ballhawk; times jumps and bodies receivers at the catch point
- Brings real edge and physicality downhill; willing to shed blocks and mix it up

WEAKNESSES:

- Lacks speed and true sideline range to break on go-balls
- Below-average short-area quickness greatly limits open-field tackling ability
- Has low recovery ability; mistakes can't be made up with speed
- Inconsistent tackler in space; often over-pursues or whiffs on lateral runners
- Struggles to mirror in man without contact; relies on physicality over movement
- Underdeveloped in intermediate zone responsibilities; loses feel for routes behind him
- Better as a run defender from the box than deep safety alignment

HEIGHT 6'4"
WEIGHT 331

YEAR JUNIOR
AGE 21

GRADE

EARLY
2ND

POSITION
RANKING

3

RAS

7.18

10 YD

1.72

40 YD

5.13

PRO COMPARISON:
DONTARI POE

BONUS COMP: IF ARMAND MEMBOU WAS A DT

A dancing bear with rare get-off and power, Grant's next step is learning how to use it all to dominate.

ELITE
STRENGTH

FAST &
FLUID

INCONSISTENT

UNDER-USES
HIS POWER

STRENGTHS:

- Incredible get-off for his size, very explosive out of his stance
- Dominant lower-body strength makes him nearly immovable at the point of attack
- Devastating leg drive when he commits to the bull-rush; can bulldoze OL with ease
- Flashes lateral quickness and agility that lets him shoot gaps or stunt effectively
- Block-shed & run play blow-up shows flashes with strength, a swim move, and wiggle
- Comfortable one-gapping or two-gapping; versatile alignment fit
- Stuns linemen with speed-to-power when he taps into it
- Shows flashes of light feet and flexibility rarely seen in 330+ pound defenders

WEAKNESSES:

- Frustratingly plays finesse-first despite elite power potential
- Hand fighting can distract him from driving into the pocket with strength & leverage
- Underdeveloped pass-rush plan; wins off athleticism, no real moves or counters
- Inconsistent pad level; pops upright too often and loses leverage
- Coordination and control are spotty when exploding off the ball
- Stunt-heavy role in '24 hid some growth opportunities as a 1-on-1 rusher
- Sometimes gives up on double teams despite having the strength to fight through them

HEIGHT 6'4" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 313 | AGE 21

GRADE

EARLY 2NDPOSITION
RANKING

4

RAS

N/A

10 YD

1.74

40 YD

4.95

PRO COMPARISON:
NICK FAIRLEY

An all-around force with length and size, Harmon is a plug-and-play piece for any front.

EXPLOSIVE LINEAR ATHLETE

BULL
RUSH

BLOCK
SHEDDING

LACKS FLEXIBILITY

STRENGTHS:

- Big frame with freakish wingspan and length
- Explosive get-off creates early momentum for a highly effective bull rush
- Good linear explosiveness helps him shoot gaps and pressure early
- Bull-rush and long-arm moves consistently collapse the pocket
- Flashes a strong inside spin and rip move that punish oversetting guards
- Easy block-shedder that uses his length and physicality to his advantage
- Generally maintains solid pad level for his size and uses it to anchor well
- Simple yet effective pass-rush plan
- Rarely gets moved 1-on-1 in the run game due to dense frame

WEAKNESSES:

- Relatively stiff mover with limited flexibility and poor lateral agility
- Inconsistent hand usage; lets blockers into his frame too often
- Balance issues show up frequently; ends up on the ground more than ideal
- Fails to convert sacks when creating pressure
- Needs to improve backfield awareness; doesn't disengage in time for sacks/TFLs
- Pass-rush plan is limited; lacks true counter arsenal beyond rip and spin
- When pad level rises, anchor suffers and his lower-body strength looks average

HEIGHT 6'5" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 242 | AGE 21

GRADE

EARLY 2NDPOSITION
RANKING

3

RAS

9.40

10 YD

1.56

40 YD

4.47

PRO COMPARISON:
JOSH SWEAT

Pearce overwhelms with speed and pop, but his game still lacks some dimension and nuance.

ELITE
SPEEDPOWER
RUSHERSMALL
FRAMELACKS FLEXIBILITY

STRENGTHS:

- Elite burst off the ball, consistently threatens the corner with speed alone
- Effective outside rush with simple swipe/chop moves to beat the outside hand
- Speed-to-power is legit; surprises tackles with a violent punch and strong leg drive
- Plays low to the ground with good leverage to help with the bull rush
- Flashes an inside swipe to exploit oversets, especially off his initial burst
- Elite speed makes him dangerous on clean runway rushes
- Productive despite a limited pass-rush bag; his traits are enough to win reps
- Incredible pursuit speed against the run
- Physicality and motor show up when he uses his arms and legs to get off blocks

WEAKNESSES:

- Very narrow, upright frame; limits his anchor and makes him a target in run defense
- Surprisingly lacks bend and agility to truly flatten angles & be flexible around the corner
- Underdeveloped hand usage beyond his speed-based rush moves
- Limited pass-rush bag & counters; rep often ends if initial move is stalled
- Rarely played early downs; edge-setting and block-shedding are question marks
- One-speed player with limited pacing or changeups
- Short arms & wingspan that allow larger tackles to reach and get him into their frame

HEIGHT 6'0"
WEIGHT 220

YEAR JUNIOR
AGE 21

GRADE

EARLY
2ND

POSITION
RANKING

2

RAS

9.70

10 YD

1.53

40 YD

4.46

PRO COMPARISON:
DEMARCO MURRAY

A downhill hammer with breakaway speed to punish defenders, he just won't shake many in the open field.

SPEED &
STRENGTH

CONTACT
BALANCE

GAP
BLOCKING

LACKS ELUSIVENESS & CREATIVITY

STRENGTHS:

- Gains speed very quickly as a north-south runner and erases pursuit angles
- Strong frame with legit power; bounces off contact and trucks head-on
- Excellent fit in gap schemes where he can follow pullers & break big gains downhill
- Accelerates with urgency from a standstill & reaches a great top speed
- Efficient runner; gets vertical and maximizes yardage
- Finishes runs with real pop and violence
- Patient behind his blocks and shows good burst when the lane opens
- Survived poor run blocking at UNC and created yardage through force and burst

WEAKNESSES:

- Lacks creativity and elusiveness; not a runner who makes defenders miss in space
- Not agile & struggles to redirect once committed
- Vision in wide zone is inconsistent, hesitant and often late on stretch reads
- Robotic footwork in the open field, doesn't manipulate defenders or extend openings
- Can drop his head and barrel forward, limits reactions to developing lanes
- Has a great initial punch in pass-pro but late processing to pick up blitzers

HEIGHT 6'4" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 304 | AGE 21

ARM: 33.5"

GRADE

MID
2ND

POSITION
RANK

5

RAS

8.98

10 YD

1.70

40 YD

5.05

PRO COMPARISON:
BRODERICK JONES

An explosive get-off and great first strike gives him real potential, but can he learn to finish what he starts?

LATERAL QUICKNESS

PASS-PRO
UPSIDE

POOR GRIP STRENGTH

RAW PROSPECT

STRENGTHS:

- Elite first strike that consistently disrupts rushers' timing early in reps
- Unique proactive play-style in pass-pro that makes rushers work hard to win
- Quick get-off & kick-slide keeps him mirrored against speed
- Natural lower half strength allows for a strong initial impact against the bull rush
- Flashes good athleticism on pull blocks and in outside zone movement
- Shows leg drive when he lands cleanly
- High motor in the run game; constantly looking to clear out defenders in his lane
- Simply improving grip strength would unlock a high ceiling

WEAKNESSES:

- Grip strength and sustain are major concerns; loses connection after initial contact
- Anchor is limited for now by inconsistent chest control and not setting his feet
- Doesn't seal defenders in run game; first contact is solid, but can't sustain the block
- Powerful first strike often wasted due to lack of follow-through and grip
- Needs better timing and hand reset when rushers recover after first contact
- Struggles lock on if a defender crosses his face or redirects
- Prefers to work upfield in pass-pro, opening wide angles to the QB

HEIGHT 6'3"
WEIGHT 310

YEAR JUNIOR
AGE 21

GRADE

EARLY
2ND

POSITION
RANKING

2

RAS

9.98

10 YD

1.71

40 YD

4.84

PRO COMPARISON:
RYAN KALIL

With rare movement ability & natural skill, Wilson looks like a long-term center despite just a year under his belt.

ELITE
ATHLETICISM

ZONE
BLOCKING

PASS
PROTECTOR

LACKS TRUE POWER

STRENGTHS:

- All-time athletic tester; rare speed and agility for a center
- Rapidly climbs to the second level with precision and control in space
- Solid footwork and body positioning create great angle blocks in zone schemes
- Delivers well-timed, accurate hand strikes with strong grip once latched
- Lateral quickness to mirror rushers off the line
- Has the grip strength to sustain blocks in the run game
- Anchors surprisingly well; gets into a wide stance and holds ground against power
- Showed high IQ in his one year starting, handles line calls & processes stunts well

WEAKNESSES:

- Lacks drive-blocking power; not a true displacer on gap plays or in short yardage
- Has occasional reps where he doesn't get leverage and gets walked back by power
- Average arm length allows lengthier defenders to get into his chest
- Struggles to recover when he loses initial hand contact or punch timing
- Susceptible to push-pull & quick swim moves when overextending and losing balance
- Loses balance too often when climbing or striking on the move
- Inexperienced player and still raw as a processor and technician

HEIGHT 6'3" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 220 | AGE 21

GRADE

EARLY 2NDPOSITION
RANKING

2

RAS

10.00

10 YD

1.53

40 YD

4.38

yes, this is the best
score ever for a safety

PRO COMPARISON:
ISAIAH SIMMONS

The best-ever athletic tester for his position, and a positionless weapon in search of polish & consistency.

ALL-TIME ATHLETIC PROFILE

SIZE &
LENGTH

INCONSISTENT
HIP FLUIDITY

SLOW
PROCESSING

STRENGTHS:

- Truly rare specimen: built like a SAM linebacker with legit 4.3 speed and a 43" vert
- Violent tackler in space with block shed ability & misses very few tackles
- Explodes downhill with unreal stopping power & reliable as a cleanup tackler
- Versatile; can play LB, slot CB, or double-high safety
- Perfect QB spy
- Ideal man coverage defender against TEs and bigger slots
- Flashes awareness and ball skills in zone; 4 INTs and multiple PBUs in 2024
- Flashes ability to pick up receivers when moving down into robber or hole zone looks
- Press proficient with length & strength to disrupt releases and stay attached
- Confusing fluidity profile: flashes of incredible agility for his size

WEAKNESSES:

- Confusing fluidity profile: flashes of hip stiffness when changing direction
- Inconsistent & raw play recognition; late to react and trigger downhill against the run
- Overaggressive pursuit angles; occasionally overruns plays or arrives out of control
- Struggles to locate and play the ball in man coverage
- Not a natural deep-third safety; struggles to recognize and close in single-high
- Zone discipline issues; loses track of crossing routes while staring into the backfield

HEIGHT 6'1" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 202 | AGE 22

GRADE

MID
2NDPOSITION
RANK

5

RAS

9.72

10 YD

1.50

40 YD

4.48

PRO COMPARISON:
TYLER BOYD

A zone-beating, third-down specialist with elite reliability, but limited tools cap his ceiling.

ZONE
BEATER

QB FRIENDLY

SLOT
ONLY

LACKS PHYSICAL TRAITS

STRENGTHS:

- Consistently finds soft spots in zone coverage
- Aware and QB friendly, always works back to the quarterback
- Consistently adjusts to inaccurate balls very well
- Reliable hands with minimal drops, using late hands to secure contested catches
- Good short-area quickness and great footwork, excels on short & option routes
- Runs crisp routes with good timing underneath, a consistent chain-mover
- Very high floor due to awareness and route stemming against zone
- Efficient enough release package to play a bit on the outside if needed

WEAKNESSES:

- Gets rerouted way too often for his age by stronger defenders
- Lacks deep speed and overall burst, struggles against faster man defenders
- Wish he was tougher and stronger to fight DBs down the field
- Not particularly fluid hips which hurts him on double moves and sharper breaks
- Shows little YAC upside despite receiving many screen targets
- Produces best as a slot receiver against zone, with low upside playing on the outside

HEIGHT 6'1"
WEIGHT 195

YEAR SENIOR
AGE 23

GRADE

MID
2ND

POSITION
RANKING

4

RAS

8.37

10 YD

1.53

40 YD

4.43

PRO COMPARISON:
RASUL DOUGLAS

He won't win the first step, but Amos diagnoses routes, plays through the ball, and looks like a Day 1 pro.

FIESTY &
PHYSICAL

SCHEME
VERSATILE

CATCH POINT
TECHNIQUE

BELOW AVERAGE
ATHLETE

STRENGTHS:

- Solid technique and feel in both man and zone; rarely looks out of phase
- Physical and tough at the catch point; consistently plays through the receiver
- Great anticipation and processing from zone; breaks with anticipation
- Fantastic catch-point technique with physicality, discipline, & hand usage
- Disruptive jam in press with powerful, accurate hand usage
- Maintains strong connection to receivers in off coverage with great route IQ
- Transitions vertically better than expected for his size and build
- Good aggression in run support; brings physicality to the perimeter

WEAKNESSES:

- Heavy feet limit his ability to mirror sudden route breaks
- Below-average short-area burst; plays choppy than his 1.53 10-yard split suggests
- Downhill burst from off-man/zone is sluggish, gives up windows on quick throws
- Can be too reliant on physicality through the route, especially when recovering
- Inconsistent leverage in press; vulnerable to slants and inside-breaking routes
- Can be overaggressive and bite on comebacks and hitches

HEIGHT 6'6" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 319 | AGE 21

ARM: 33.5"

GRADE

MID
2ND

POSITION
RANK

4

RAS

9.88

10 YD

1.76

40 YD

5.00

PRO COMPARISON:
DALTON RISNER

A rugged technician with grip strength and good tape, who's searching for a clean positional fit at the next level.

GRIP
STRENGTH

FOOTWORK

UPRIGHT
PAD LEVEL

SHORT ARMS

STRENGTHS:

- Elite grip strength; once he locks onto a defender, he controls and immobilizes them
- Hand placement to make his anchor passable despite lack of core strength
- Plays with awareness and decisiveness against both the pass and run
- Solid all-around athlete, doesn't excel in any area but all is NFL-baseline
- Tough, aggressive finisher who can thrive in both gap and zone schemes
- Exceptional footwork to get him off the line and to his landmarks
- Great technique in locking onto rushers to negate counter moves
- Has shown enough skill to be at least playable at tackle

WEAKNESSES:

- Historically short wingspan; upside at OT is extremely questionable
- Gets annihilated when rushers take too wide of angles for him to reach
- Pad level and lack of core strength makes his projection to guard questionable as well
- Oddly upright stance that can lead to leverage issues & poor anchor
- Gets walked back by power if technique isn't perfect
- Telegraphs his landing spot in pass sets which can allow rushers to slip by
- Power isn't good enough to seal angles when recovering from lack of length
- Lacks initial pop on first contact, relying more on grip strength than displacement
- Vulnerable if he misses initial contact, especially versus quicker rushers and counters

HEIGHT 6'6"
WEIGHT 259

YEAR SENIOR
AGE 22

GRADE

LATE
2ND

POSITION
RANK

2

RAS

0.00

10 YD

0.00

40 YD

0.00

PRO COMPARISON:
DELANIE WALKER

A hulking YAC threat with gadget versatility, still searching for consistency as a separator and blocker.

YAC
THREAT

SIZE & STRENGTH

DOESN'T SEPARATE

INCONSISTENT BLOCKING

STRENGTHS:

- Tough to stop after the catch with acceleration and a freight-train build
- Gets vertical quickly after the catch, maximizing yards with no wasted movement
- Dangerous on screens and designed touches
- Versatile weapon at fullback & Wildcat QB – takes handoffs & throws passes
- Strong at the catch point with a big frame to box out and win contested catches
- Can use his physicality well in routes to separate through contact
- Has the size, strength, and attitude to eventually grow into a very good blocker
- Efficient enough route runner with smooth transitions

WEAKNESSES:

- Needs to become more than a designed-touch weapon to thrive at the next level
- NFL offenses are unlikely to feed him 100% of the touches the way Penn State did
- Unspecial athlete and separator
- Hands are unreliable, with a career drops issue despite improvement in 2024
- Sluggish burst off the line and limited explosiveness prevent him from separating
- Not effective on route breaks, only relies on physicality to get through guys
- Slows down through the route and doesn't adjust route depth against zone
- Struggles to separate from linebackers, lacks the twitch and polish to be a mismatch
- Blocking is a major project: plays too upright, lacks technique, and lunges or misses

HEIGHT 6'5"
WEIGHT 267

YEAR SENIOR
AGE 21

GRADE

MID
2ND

POSITION
RANK

4

RAS

10.00

10 YD

1.58

40 YD

4.59

yes, this is the best score ever for a DE

PRO COMPARISON:
RASHAN GARY

The best-ever athletic tester for his position, but lack of skill or a pass-rush plan makes him boom-or-bust.

ALL-TIME ATHLETIC PROFILE

BULL
RUSH

POSITION
VERSATILE

RAW PROSPECT

STRENGTHS:

- All-time athletic testing and elite size & length makes him a rare physical specimen
- Explodes off the line and can shoot gaps from interior D-line or off the edge
- Bull rush is hard to handle when timed properly, walked back Armand Membou
- Pursuit speed against the run is special
- Generally disruptive against the run with great play strength and long reach
- Flashes of flexibility and bend, can get underneath blockers' arms
- More developed than given credit for in how he uses his arms and hands
- Small flashes of real pass-rush moves (rip, ghost)

WEAKNESSES:

- Pass-rush plan is weak & has no counters, if his first move fails the rep usually dies
- Only 2 career sacks due to poor instincts and inability to finish after a successful move
- Decent bend for his size but probably slightly below-average for NFL
- Plays with very little decisiveness, leads to missed tackles and rush losses
- High pad level and awkward footwork limit anchor against the run
- Predictable bull-rush allows OL to time up and strike first
- If he plays at 267 (was listed at 290 at A&M), his projection gets extremely confusing

HEIGHT 6'2" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 197 | AGE 21

GRADE

MID 2NDPOSITION
RANKING

5

RAS

8.17

10 YD

1.55

40 YD

4.58

PRO COMPARISON:
JIMMY SMITH

A press-man savant with great mirror ability, even with slower speed he's a dream for Bump & Run teams.

PRESS
PROFICIENT

FLUID
MOVER

LACKS
SPEED

LACKS ZONE INSTINCTS

STRENGTHS:

- Excellent press corner with length, strength, and refined footwork
- Consistently mirrors releases with smooth transitions and great hip fluidity
- Physical at the line and throughout the route; consistently reroutes receivers
- Elite footwork allows him to stay attached without overcommitting
- Great sideline usage to box out receivers and protect inside leverage
- Rarely bites on double moves; trusts technique and reacts confidently
- Physical, tenacious tackler who plays with real edge in run support
- Impressive stop-start movement for his size; fluid mover with poise

WEAKNESSES:

- Zone discipline needs improvement; tends to drift vertically and lose leverage
- Recovery speed is clearly below average and shows up when he's out of phase
- Very grabby at route breaks, especially when coming downhill
- Inconsistent ball tracking; doesn't locate downfield as well as expected
- Doesn't trigger downhill super quickly from off-man or zone
- Explosiveness is limited; not a twitchy athlete & doesn't have amazing burst
- Run angles can be too aggressive, taking him out of position at times

HEIGHT 6'1"
WEIGHT 243

YEAR JUNIOR
AGE 21

GRADE

MID
2ND

POSITION
RANKING

3

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
BRUCE IRVIN

A juiced-up tweener with flashes of pass-rush upside, but will his versatility be a weapon, or a warning sign?

EXPLOSIVE ATHLETE

FIESTY &
PHYSICAL

RAW PROSPECT

UNCLEAR
POSITION

STRENGTHS:

- Insane burst off the line or from depth; dangerous stunt and A-gap blitzer
- True bend as an EDGE rusher to flatten angles and close on the QB
- Rare lateral quickness & shiftiness; can evade OL with sudden movement
- Very intriguing power potential with flashes of leg drive and contact power
- Pursuit speed is elite both in space and in the backfield
- Flashes ghost or chop moves; showing he can develop counters off his speed threat
- Aggressive play-style shows up both against the run and as a blitzer
- Can play on the edge, stacked LB, and over the A-gap

WEAKNESSES:

- Tweener body type with short arms; may not be a full-time EDGE
- Underdeveloped pass-rush plan; no counters and doesn't recover after contact
- Gets overwhelmed by stronger linemen; anchor and edge-setting are concerns
- Inconsistent tackler who doesn't always strike cleanly or wrap up
- Frequently over-pursues or takes himself out of plays by trying to do too much
- Lacks feel in zone coverage; eyes lock on the QB and loses route development
- Projection is murky: small for EDGE, underdeveloped for three-down LB

HEIGHT 6'5"
WEIGHT 260

YEAR JUNIOR
AGE 21

GRADE

MID
2ND

POSITION
RANKING

4

RAS

N/A

10 YD

1.61

40 YD

4.77

PRO COMPARISON:
ZIGGY ANSAH

Built in a lab to dominate the run, can Williams learn how to turn his elite traits into pass-rush ability?

BLOCK
SHEDDING

LONG & STRONG

RAW PROSPECT

LACKS
BEND

STRENGTHS:

- Physical tools give him an elite edge-setting & block-shedding profile
- Freaky arm length allows him to control linemen & wrap up from wide angles
- Great functional strength to anchor against the run
- Technically sound block-shed; holds linemen, finds the ball-carrier, then discards
- Flashes of great acceleration, especially from wide alignments
- Lateral quickness is impressive for his size; good gap shooter on stunts and slants
- Flashes of pass-rush moves including a swipe and inside club
- Athleticism gives him intriguing upside as a rusher

WEAKNESSES:

- Few true 1-on-1 pass-rush chances; was mainly a 4i eating double teams at Georgia
- Very raw pass rusher with limited move diversity and almost no counter ability
- Bull rush underwhelms for his strength due to high pad level and poor hand usage
- Predetermined rush plans, rarely adjusts based on tackle sets or blocking leverage
- Lacks bend, often upright & unable to dip and flatten toward the QB
- Clunky get-off; frequently the last off the line, limiting burst into his rush
- Even when he has a good get-off it often stalls due to poor angle or pad level

HEIGHT 6'2" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 248 | AGE 21

GRADE

MID 2NDPOSITION
RANKING

5

RAS

8.15

SHORT SHUTTLE

4.25

THREE CONE

6.85

both are over 95th percentile

PRO COMPARISON:
JERRY HUGHES

A bendy technician with a freakish wingspan, Ezeiraku's other physical traits still leave some questions.

ELITE
BEND

PASS-RUSH
BAG

SMALL FRAME

LACKS POWER

STRENGTHS:

- Extremely long arms provide natural leverage and keep blockers off his body
- Fantastic bend and agility, flattens angles and dips under tackles regularly
- Uses a ghost move that he regularly wins with to get underneath tackles
- Uses a two-hand stab to open up tackles' arms, then mainly gets into a great cross-chop move; it's a smart, repeatable rush plan
- Acceleration through his dip around the edge allows him to finish plays regularly
- Has a bag of inside counters he uses regularly
- Occasionally shows speed-to-power flashes that catch tackles by surprise
- Solid hand usage vs the run to slip off blocks, especially when he stays clean ear

WEAKNESSES:

- Mediocre burst off the snap; needs to win with bend & moves instead of speed
- Power profile is below-average; occasional speed-to-power but it's not consistent
- Small frame that struggles to disengage from tight ends & double teams
- Edge-setting & anchor against the run are below average; simply lacks the size
- Tends to over-pursue early in run plays, leaving backside gaps open
- Tackling form and reliability vary too much; doesn't always finish cleanly
- Rush plan relies heavily on a few setups; NFL tackles may adapt quickly

HEIGHT 5'10" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 194 | AGE 22

GRADE

LATE
2NDPOSITION
RANK

5

RAS

9.75

10 YD

1.52

40 YD

4.39

PRO COMPARISON:
DARNELL MOONEY

A bullet-train slot receiver with serious vertical ability, who's still growing as a route technician & YAC weapon.

EXPLOSIVE ATHLETE

DEEP THREAT

SLOT
ONLY

UNDER-SIZED

STRENGTHS:

- Lightning-quick burst off the line with short-area twitch and suddenness
- Extremely hard to stay connected to with unpredictable, fast-twitch movement
- Wins vertically from the slot with great pacing, stride variation, & tracking ability
- Twitch to decelerate and separate on curls and hitches
- Good at manipulating pursuit angles after the catch
- Surprisingly strong in contested catch situations for his size; great numbers in 2024
- Filled-out frame for 5'10", absorbs contact well and can fight through coverage

WEAKNESSES:

- Small receiver with small hands, catch radius is pretty limited
- Doesn't sell horizontal breaks well, struggles to consistently separate
- YAC ability is a underwhelming despite his traits; lacking creativity after the catch
- Can go through the motions when he knows he's not the primary read
- Best suited for the slot because his free release is so explosive
- Route-running can be too reliant on twitch, needs more detail and pacing
- Lacks open field skills – upside to be a great screen threat but just not there right now

HEIGHT 6'2" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 206 | AGE 21

GRADE

MID
2ND

POSITION
RANKING

3

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
LONGER JABRILL PEPPERS

With elite length, tackling, and downhill speed, Winston can be special if he develops in zone coverage.

ELITE RUN DEFENSE

ELITE
LENGTH

RAW ZONE COVERAGE

LACK OF BALL SKILLS

STRENGTHS:

- Prototypical frame for an NFL safety with all-time wingspan & arm length
- Virtually flawless tackler in space; consistently wraps up and rarely misses
- Great acceleration and violent downhill burst; can man up against most receivers
- Fantastic pursuit angles and reach allow him to finish plays well outside his frame
- Great reaction speed on runs, screens, and short throws
- Serious stopping power at contact; erases YAC and holds up vs. tight ends
- Excellent block shedding; keeps his frame clean with length and technique
- Flashes natural feel in intermediate zones with awareness of route layers

WEAKNESSES:

- Underdeveloped ball production; very few pass breakups or INTs on tape
- Delayed reaction time in deep coverage; lacks anticipatory instincts right now
- Struggles to decipher complex route concepts in front of him
- Recent ACL injury slowed down what should've been development in coverage
- Fluidity & change of direction are slightly below average; can struggle to mirror in man
- Sloppy footwork at times, especially in transitions or when backpedaling
- Doesn't consistently read route concepts or QB progressions in coverage

HEIGHT 6'6" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 312 | AGE 23

ARM: 32"

GRADE

LATE
2ND

POSITION
RANK

3

RAS

9.90

VERT

36.5

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
MATT BIRK

Smart and strong with clear interior tools, but the FCS leap and arm length makes him a projection swing.

ANCHOR

LEG DRIVE

ZONE
BLOCKING

SHORT ARMS

STRENGTHS:

- Impactful first strike when connecting with a defender
- Strong anchor with excellent leg strength, will plant and hold his ground effectively
- Easy-moving & laterally quick zone blocker who consistently looks for work
- Intelligence & athleticism to play center, and core strength to play guard
- One of the highest vertical jumps for an OL ever, explosiveness flashes on tape
- Great awareness and adjustments in both pass and run blocking
- Neutralizes power moves like the long arm and bull rush by striking down rushers' arms
- Sufficient leg drive to be effective in both gap and zone blocking schemes

WEAKNESSES:

- If a team plays him at tackle he will surely struggle
- Upright pad-level needs to improve to make the clean transition inside
- Shorter arms and unwillingness to strike first means his chest is too unprotected
- Appeared less explosive than testing suggests on several reps
- Dominated FCS talent but NFL projection is slightly cloudier
- Get-off and kick-slide footwork is uncoordinated
- Linear pass protector who can be beaten on either shoulder
- Over-aggressive reach results in balance issues

HEIGHT 6'3"
WEIGHT 195

YEAR SENIOR
AGE 24

GRADE

LATE
2ND

POSITION
RANKING

6

RAS

9.99

10 YD

1.51

40 YD

4.30

PRO COMPARISON:
ZYON MCOLLUM

A converted WR with freak-of-nature tools, Porter may be underdeveloped but his upside is too hard to ignore.

ALL-TIME ATHLETIC PROFILE

ELITE
LENGTH

RAW PROSPECT

NEW TO THE
POSITION

STRENGTHS:

- Elite speed and recovery burst; rarely stacked vertically and can erase separation
- Agile with shocking hip fluidity for his size; opens and runs with ease
- Exceptional length (33" arms) helps him stay connected and affect the catch point
- Former wide receiver with natural ball skills, tracking & leaping ability
- Agile with shocking hip fluidity for his size; opens and runs with ease
- Flashes reactionary quickness and mirror ability when routes develop in front of him
- Good in press when balanced; quick feet & long strides keep him in phase
- Absurd production in 2024; only targeted 17 times and allowed only 5 receptions

WEAKNESSES:

- 24-year-old developmental prospect with only one year starting
- Extremely raw with minimal reps; new to the position and still learning technique
- Plays off balance in press; leans too forward and can get beaten on the release
- Footwork and posture break down against sudden releases and route breaks
- Inexperienced in off-man or zone coverage; mostly asked to play press-man
- Doesn't anticipate routes; reactive rather than predictive in man coverage
- Poor run support and tackling; lacks awareness and block shedding

HEIGHT 6'1" | YEAR JUNIOR
WEIGHT 205 | AGE 21

GRADE

MID 2NDPOSITION
RANKING

4

RAS

5.29

10 YD

1.58

40 YD

4.50

PRO COMPARISON:

CHAUNCEY GARDNER-JOHNSON

Starks was a jack-of-all-trades at Georgia, but may need to specialize to thrive at the next level.

POSITION
VERSATILELIKES TO TACKLELACKS ZONE
INSTINCTSLACKS
AGILITY

STRENGTHS:

- Highly versatile safety who's played single-high, split-safety, slot CB, and box safety
- Impressive catch-point ball skills and deep-ball tracking
- Very solid linear athlete who can accelerate quickly to meet his target
- Effective in man coverage with strong hand-fighting and route disruption
- Great length and acceleration to stay in phase with tight ends down the seam
- General reliability as a tackler with body control to strike accurately & wrap-up
- Comfortable matching up with WRs, TEs, and RBs in man coverage
- Physical and technically sound at the line in press or off-man coverage

WEAKNESSES:

- Pursuit angles are often linear and constantly take him out of position to finish plays
- Gets distracted by the QB in zone coverage and loses track of receivers often
- Poor agility confirmed by testing and tape; struggles vs. quick-twitch WRs
- Covers grass too often and misjudges spacing in pattern-match zone
- Downhill trigger is inconsistent; late to close on breaking routes
- Lacks block-shedding skills when engaged in the run game
- Despite lots of experience, hasn't developed much in terms of zone processing or feel

HEIGHT 6'3" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 334 | AGE 22

GRADE

LATE 2NDPOSITION
RANKING

5

RAS

N/A

10 YD

1.74

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
STAR LOTULELEI

Williams controls early downs with power, but needs consistency to stay on the field for all three.

ELITE
STRENGTH

ANCHOR & BLOCK SHED

UPRIGHT
PAD LEVEL

INCONSISTENT

STRENGTHS:

- Overwhelming power at the point of attack; can collapse gaps with raw strength
- Initial punch can be devastating and have great knockback power
- Massive frame to anchor against double teams & hold ground consistently
- Flashes of lateral quickness and wiggle when first engaging a blocker
- Flashes a hesitation-bull rush combo that can catch linemen off-balance
- Solid block shedder with great leg drive when it all times up correctly
- High early-down value as a space-eater with strength to dictate at the line

WEAKNESSES:

- Upright pad level limits leverage and prevents full use of his power
- Inconsistent get-off; often the last off the line and stands up out of his stance
- Short arms let blockers into his chest too easily and too early
- Pass-rush skills are underdeveloped; very linear with no backup plan for his first move
- Lacks spatial awareness once engaged; doesn't disengage to finish a play after a win
- Flashes athleticism but rarely capitalizes on it; movement skills come and go
- Needs to accelerate his timing on block sheds; arrives too late on many plays

HEIGHT 5'8"
WEIGHT 200

YEAR JUNIOR
AGE 20

GRADE

LATE
2ND

POSITION
RANKING

3

RAS

6.60

10 YD

1.58

40 YD

4.42

PRO COMPARISON:
BUCKY IRVING

Sampson's creativity, feel, & vision, make him a smart bet, even if the projection takes some imagination.

ELITE
VISION

DOWNFIELD BURST

SCHEME
VERSATILE

LACKS POWER

STRENGTHS:

- Unique creativity paired with good elusiveness lets him create his own lanes
- Natural feel, vision, & spatial awareness; effective at weaving through traffic upfield
- Excellent acceleration with the long speed to punish angles and hit chunk gains
- Good contact balance despite lack of power, runs with an effective forward lean
- A natural for gap schemes, gets skinny to split gaps & navigate congested lanes
- Smooth pace adjuster in inside zone, alters tempo to sync with blockers
- Good YAC threat with soft hands & good upfield transition (despite limited usage)
- Very young with virtually no mileage compared to other backs in the class

WEAKNESSES:

- Narrow shoulders & light frame; lacks face-up power & doesn't fight through tackles
- Doesn't have elite explosiveness for his small frame, long gains come more from vision
- Lacks the physicality to consistently force missed tackles through contact
- Limited outside zone decisiveness; better at cutting vertically than horizontally
- Tennessee offense limited his pass game reps, receiving ability is more of a projection
- Pass protection largely untested, and size could make him a liability in blitz pickup

HEIGHT 6'3" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 193 | AGE 24

GRADE

EARLY
3RD

POSITION
RANKING

7

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
DIET RICHARD SHERMAN

Revel has a long way to go, but with his size & speed it's easy to see why someone will bet on the tools.

SIZE &
SPEED

BALL SKILLS

PRESS
PROFICIENT

RAW PROSPECT

STRENGTHS:

- Elite physical tools with great size, arm length, and elite top-end speed to match
- Disruptive at the line in press-man; heavy two-hand punch stuns releases early
- Tracks deep balls well and plays through the receiver with timing and awareness
- Explosive closing burst when driving downhill from top-down coverage
- Solid fluidity for his size; flashes strong mirroring ability when it lines up
- Equally comfortable in vertical zone & man systems with consistent feel for space
- Surprisingly reliable tackler for a longer corner; wraps up consistently and finishes
- Allowed low catch rate and showed real ball production when targeted

WEAKNESSES:

- Inconsistent footwork from press; puts himself in recovery mode too often
- Stickiness is inconsistent; can coast on traits instead of locking in through the route
- Lack of exposure to coverage schemes besides cover 3 and press-man
- Can be a little stiff on some transitions in route breaks
- Very slender frame & can be outmuscled by physical receivers throughout a route
- Basic zone coverage instincts are solid but he may struggle in match coverage
- Overall raw with not much playing time and some inconsistencies vs. weak competition

HEIGHT 6'2" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 215 | AGE 23

GRADE

EARLY 3RDPOSITION
RANK

2

RAS

N/A

10 YD

N/A

40 YD

N/A

PRO COMPARISON:
NICK FOLE

A safe and tough passer with below average tools that raise legitimate questions about his upside.

POISED PASSER

LIMITS
TURNOVERS

LACKS ARM
STRENGTH

BELOW AVERAGE
ATHLETE

STRENGTHS:

- Very comfortable targeting the middle of the field
- Remarkably poised under pressure, willing to sit and absorb hits to still deliver throws
- Best mechanics in the class; ball always comes out the right way with solid accuracy
- Got his ass kicked behind his o-line for two straight years and still performed well
- Generally consistent accuracy to the short and intermediate levels of the field
- Throws with good leverage awareness, always knows when to use touch versus drive
- Careful with the football, minimized turnover-worthy plays his entire career
- Flashes the ability to go through full-field progressions with patience
- Shows good instincts for making plays outside of structure despite limited athleticism

WEAKNESSES:

- Underdeveloped as a processor with limited ability to read safeties post-snap
- Below-average arm strength limits his ability to throw the ball with velocity or distance
- Does not throw with anticipation which is disappointing given physical tools
- Lapses in the pocket lead to unnecessary sacks
- Lacks speed and athleticism, playmaking will likely be unreliable at the NFL level
- RPO-execution is too inconsistent with too many wrong decisions
- Throws are generally solid, but all are unspectacular
- Ball-placement isn't special despite generally good accuracy, "accurate not precise"

HEIGHT 6'2"
WEIGHT 217

YEAR JUNIOR
AGE 22

GRADE
MID
3RD

POSITION
RANK
3

RAS
9.79u

10 YD
1.44

40 YD
4.40

PRO COMPARISON:
MONSTER TRUCK JUSTIN FIELDS

A true boom-or-bust dual threat who could reshape a run-first offense... or flame out of the league entirely.

DEEP
PASSING

ELITE
RUNNER

VERY SMALL HANDS

PROCESSING ISSUES

STRENGTHS:

- Truly elite runner with elusiveness, strength, & game-breaking acceleration
- Consistently breaks tackles and projects as a top 2-3 rushing QB on day one
- Muscular, stocky build that could hold up to a high rushing workload
- Stronger arm than given credit for, can drive the ball with velocity when he's in sync
- Strong deep accuracy in a clean pocket, with natural ball placement downfield
- Uses the sideline effectively to box out defenders and give receivers easy targets
- Willing to take checkdowns & generally doesn't force the ball downfield
- Shows upside with flashes of good pocket mobility & ability to escape pressure

WEAKNESSES:

- Small hands cause inconsistent grip, some throws lack velocity and come out clunky
- Struggles to read the middle of the field, will ignore it or miss lurking defenders
- Processing & decision-making are huge concerns, lots of missed reads & bad throws
- Struggles to move on from reads and doesn't recognize DB rotations or coverage traps
- Holds the ball too long, sometimes taking unnecessary sacks that kill drives
- RPO decision-making is too slow & his release needs to speed up
- Pocket movement is inconsistent; often fails to feel pressure or react
- Extremely low floor makes him one of the highest-risk prospects in the draft

HEIGHT 5'11" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 194 | AGE 23

GRADE

MID
3RDPOSITION
RANKING

8

RAS

8.99

10 YD

1.52

40 YD

4.39

PRO COMPARISON:

KOOL-AID MCKINSTRY WITH RUN DEFENSE SKILLS

A multi-role DB with strong tackling, good hands, & the IQ to address his zone lapses despite limited quickness.

POSITION
VERSATILE

CATCH POINT TECHNIQUE

LACKS
TWITCH

INCONSISTENT IN ZONE

STRENGTHS:

- Wrap-up tackling and block-shedding skills are exceptionally consistent
- Highly versatile defender who lined up at safety, slot corner, and outside corner
- Forceful, disruptive hands both at the line of scrimmage & redirecting receivers
- Good long speed and stride length to hang with receivers downfield
- Upside in press-man coverage despite limited experience
- Very good ability to position himself at the catch point and play the ball
- Composure against double moves and vertical fakes in man coverage
- Maintains solid spacing in certain zone concepts between high and low routes

WEAKNESSES:

- Noticeable lack of twitch and explosiveness, making it tough to close on receivers
- Zone awareness and reaction to receivers is lacking; covers grass too often
- Gets too focused on the QB, losing track of routes unfolding around him
- Can become distracted and lose track of receivers when left with too much space
- Off-man coverage is questionable given his limited burst and difficulty closing on routes
- Doesn't contribute to run defense as often as his tackling ability suggests
- Didn't fully break out until late, how will his limited movement skills translate?

HEIGHT 6'4" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 314 | AGE 23

ARM: 35"

GRADE

POSITION
RANK

MID
3RD

6

RAS

10 YD

40 YD

5.76

1.80

5.09

PRO COMPARISON:
TERRON ARMSTEAD

An athletic marvel with tree branches for arms, his limited strength and FCS level makes him a true project.

HIGH UPSIDE

ELITE
ATHLETICISM

LACKS STRENGTH

LOW
COMPETITION
LEVEL

STRENGTHS:

- Elite quickness and agility
- 35" arms create a huge margin for error in pass-pro & reach blocks in the run game
- Consistently sets to the proper depth in pass-pro & takes good angles
- Has the lateral quickness to improve an already solid kick-slide in pass-pro
- Knows how to use his length to get in a defender's chest plate early
- Flashes some surprisingly polished hand usage for an FCS prospect
- Lower body strength is solid, can drive his legs in the run game
- Flashes dominant wins in zone blocking where everything comes together
- Dominated weak competition at the FCS level, finishes every block

WEAKNESSES:

- Tested poorly which raises some concerns – but the tape says he's an elite athlete
- Average anchor even at FCS level, can he handle NFL power rushers?
- Pad level needs to improve, rarely wins the leverage battle
- Upper body strength is not NFL-ready, punches and hand strikes are weak
- Footwork in pass protection is a work in progress and looks clunky at times
- Has below-average grip strength in both pass and run blocking
- May need a "redshirt" year to gain the bulk and power to be NFL-ready

HEIGHT 6'4"
WEIGHT 280

YEAR SENIOR
AGE 23

GRADE

MID
3RD

POSITION
RANKING

7

RAS

N/A

10 YD

1.65

40 YD

4.67

PRO COMPARISON:
ARIK ARMSTEAD

A rare athlete at 280lbs with inside-out versatility,
Burch has real upside if he can gain consistency.

EXPLOSIVE ATHLETE

ANCHOR

ALIGNMENT
VERSATILE

UNDER-USES
HIS POWER

STRENGTHS:

- Shocking get-off and acceleration at nearly 280 lbs
- Gap-shooting threat with excellent lateral quickness and ability to split double teams
- Very effective edge setter with elite anchor strength; rarely gives ground
- Very low missed-tackle rate with consistent wrap-up ability; stonewall tackler
- Flashes of an easy & powerful bull rush & speed-to-power when he commits to it
- Effective stunt rusher, combining frame, punch power, and quickness to win inside
- Has lined up from 3-tech to wide-9 with success
- Flashes good hand usage includes a nice cross-chop, rip, and inside ghost move
- Impressive closing speed when he clears hands, finishes plays with burst

WEAKNESSES:

- Lacks true bend and fluidity around the edge, limiting upside as a true wide EDGE
- Power profile is underused despite natural strength; prioritizes speed/finesse too much
- Pass-rush plan is basic without any counters that are effective
- Needs to be more aggressive shedding run blocks, he's too content to hold ground
- Shows hands too early, allowing OL to get into his frame and redirect him
- Inconsistent playstyle: flashes dominance, but effort and violence waver snap to snap

HEIGHT 6'4" | YEAR SENIOR
WEIGHT 315 | AGE 22

ARM: 33.5"

GRADE

POSITION
RANK

MID
3RD

4

RAS

VERT

SHORT SHUTTLE

8.99

32.5"

4.84

PRO COMPARISON:
LAKEN TOMLINSON

Reliable & ready swingman – just don't expect a big leap from what he already is.

FOOTWORK

GRIP
STRENGTH

POSITION
VERSATILE

AVERAGE
ATHLETE

STRENGTHS:

- Smart, technically sound lineman who adjusted at tackle very well over the season
- Wide frame and freakish wingspan give him natural tools at both guard and tackle
- Helps his anchor a ton when he times his punch and locks into a defender's chest
- Nimble, coordinated footwork gives him a strong floor in both phases
- Finishes blocks with consistent effort and drive, rarely lets a defender go
- Naturally understands how to strike into the chest plate and lock on with grip strength
- "Karaoke" crossover step covers ground quickly and smoothly when on the move

WEAKNESSES:

- Pad level is consistently too high, leverage and balance can be frequent issues
- Average to below-average core strength, flexibility, and explosion
- Can be way too late to pick up stunts or delayed rushers for his play-style
- Outside of his chest strike, hand timing and placement can be inconsistent
- Anchor isn't natural; gets walked back by DTs who win low
- Occasionally gets caught upright and stops his feet when moving to the second level
- His feel for pass-setting is underdeveloped
- Balanced and versatile but may be near his ceiling already

MY BIG BOARD VS. CONSENSUS

PLAYERS I'M NOTABLY HIGHER/LOWER ON THAN THE CONSENSUS BIG BOARD (FROM ARIF HASAN)

PLAYER	CONSENSUS RANK	MY RANK	DIFFERENCE
JARED WILSON	73	26	+47
CHARLES GRANT	88	48	+40
JAHDAE BARRON	13	47	-34
TYLER BOOKER	31	8	+33
DARIEN PORTER	70	40	+31
DYLAN SAMPSON	76	44	+30
XAVIER WATTS	48	20	+28
CARSON SCHWESINGER	17	47	+27
MAXWELL HAIRSTON	39	13	+26
MALAKI STARKS	15	41	-26
WILL CAMPBELL	5	31	-26
TYLER WARREN	6	32	-26
SHEDEUR SANDERS	21	45	-24
JORDAN BURCH	72	49	+23
JALON WALKER	11	34	-23